This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

DIARY OF ISAIAH THOMAS.

January, 1819.

3. Went to Church twice.

4. Met with the Worcester Fire Club this Evening at Sike's Worcester Coffee house. This was the annual meeting—A very handsome Supper, and a general Attendance of the Members; the number of whom is now about 24. This Institution was formed in 1793. I was among its first members.

6. Nahum Bragg—my late Coachman came to see me —he is married and lives in Concord. Is desirous of living with me again. Grand children rode out.

7. Parker out all night.

9. Sent Parker to Shrewsbury to change with the person I received it from, a Counterfeit Bill. Grand children rode out.

10. Went to Church twice.

11. Attended with the Rev. Dr. Bancroft and Edw. D. Bangs, Esq. as a Committee to examine the Social Library of this town.

12. Bought the first load of Wood this season.

15. A little Fracas with my black boy Andrew. Grand children rode out. Sub Council of the Am. Antiq^{n}. Society met at my house.

16. Have had a Cold for about 10 days past. No sledding yet this season—Ground entirely bare. Springs very low.

17. Went to Church twice.

18. Our Girls in the kitchen are gone to another dance to spend the night—ball and party as they call it. Moses Thomas—dined.

19. Sent Pork to Goulding's to Bacon.

20. Bad travelling—no snow—frost mostly out of the Ground—Mail belated 3 hours, from Boston.

24. Went to Church twice. Miss Eliza Bancroft dined with me, and, as usual, Wm. Andrews.

25. Lewis a journeyman Printer had a Concert—a number attended. My Grand daughters attended as did most of the people in the Street. Singing only—and only by Lewis.

27. Moses Thomas called.

28. Young people's Assembly night at Hathaway's Hall.[1]

[1] This was the hall in the old Heywood Tavern, or Central Hotel, then kept by Samuel Hathaway.

In 1714 Daniel Heywood, the son of Deacon John Heywood of Concord, Mass., came to Worcester, and at once took an active part in the government of the new settlement. He was one of the first deacons of the church; captain of the first military company formed in the town, in 1722; town treasurer in the same year; selectman for twenty years between 1724 and 1753, and major of a company which marched to the defence of the western frontier, in August, 1748.

Several years after his removal to Worcester, probably in 1722, he built the second tavern in the town, on the site of the present Bay State House. After his death, in April, 1771, it was occupied successively by his son and grandson, until the death of the latter in 1818. The property was soon afterwards bought by Reuben Wheeler, who built a large addition for a hall, on the north side of the tavern, making the whole length of the building seventy-five feet, and its width sixty feet. The hall occupied the two upper stories, and until the erection of Brinley Hall in 1837 was the largest in Worcester. The dining room was beneath, and the office, or bar-room, was in the southwest corner of the building.

It was afterwards kept by Cyrus Stockwell, as "Stockwell's Tavern," in 1827, by Lewis Lilley, as the "Union Tavern," in the following year by Samuel Banister as the "Rising Sun Tavern," and later as the "Central Hotel."

Although the largest and best-equipped tavern in the town, it does not seem to have played the important part in the political events of the eighteenth century which the taverns did only after the advent of the stage-coach and the increase in travel, its patronage grew, and for many years it was the principal stage house in Worcester. Among its associations is the fact that from 1830 to 1846 it was the headquarters of Ginery Twichell, the famous stage owner, driver and express rider; in the bar-room, too, every Tuesday night, assembled the postriders from all parts of the county, ready to distribute the Massachusetts Spy, after its publication on the following morning.

In 1833 the tavern was bought by Isaac Davis and Nathan Heard, who sold it in 1854 to the "Bay State House Corporation."

[1]At this time Calvin Darby had a shop for the carding of wool, at the corner of School and Union streets. In 1823 he disposed of his business to Ichabod Washburn and Benjamin Goddard, and was afterwards engaged in the manufacture of various articles. He died 29 October, 1841.

14. Went to Church twice.

15. M^{r}. Newton spent the Evening with me—Prepared a large number of Letters to Officers & Members of the Am. Antiq^{n}. Society.

17. Some members of the Society of the first parish in this Town, particularly Danl. Waldo, Deacon Richards and a Col. Childs,—the three Misses Waldo, and a few others, called a Council, requesting to be set apart as a new Church—7 Clergymen with their Delegates met in this town on the 17th inst. but did not judge it to be expedient to comply with the request. All the above persons had for some time previous left the first Society and associated with the Baptists.[1]

Had an offer of 500 dolars for the place at Paxton—it cost 800 dols. but is going fast to decay.

18. Last dancing Assembly for the season at Hathaway's. Four Pirates and Murderers hung on Boston neck[2].

[1] As a result of the troubles existing in the First Parish, Deacon David Richards, his wife and eight others, who had been refused "recommendation" to other parishes, caused an ecclesiastical council to be called, as a means of solving their difficulties. This council, of which Rev. Nathaniel Emmons of Franklin, was moderator, convened 16 August, 1820, approved the new confession of faith and covenant, and formed the petitioners into the "Calvinist Church in Worcester." Services were held at the house of Deacon Richards until the spring of 1822. 8 February of that year, "articles of association" for the formation of a new society were signed by Daniel Waldo, David Richards, William McFarland, John W. Hubbard, Moses N. Child, Samuel Taylor, Benjamin Goddard and Jonas Parker, who bound themselves to meet the expenses of public worship for five years. 3 April, regular public services were held in the Court House, and were continued there until the new church was ready for occupation 13 October, 1823.

[2] These four seamen, John Williams, John P. Rog, Niles Peterson and Francis Frederick were convicted of piracy and murder on board the schooner Plattsburg, of Baltimore. In the morning, they were taken from their cells to the marshal's office, where they were dressed in blue jackets and trousers, and hats with pendant ribbons, and their hands were pinioned behind them. At a quarter after eleven they were placed in an open wagon, accompanied by the deputy marshal and the chaplain, the Rev. Mr. Labrasay, of the Roman Catholic Church. A procession was formed in front of the jail (on the site of the present city hall) and marched through Court, State, India, Custom, Milk and Washington streets to the place of execution on Boston Neck, in the following order:—

"Deputy-Marshal on horseback, bearing the silver Oar.
Two Deputy-Marshals, on horseback.
National Surgeon and Officer of Police, in a carriage.
Coroner Stevenson, on horseback.
Marshal Prince, and Sheriff Hall, in a carriage.

Constables. PRISONERS in a wagon, attended by Deputy-Sheriff Bell, and a Clergyman. Constables.

Two Constables, with their badges.
Cart with Coffins.
Two aids on horseback."

A platform had been erected near the gallows, upon which the prisoners, the executive officers and the chaplain took their places. The exercises consisted of a few words spoken by the deputy marshal, enjoining order and quiet among the multitude, the reading of the death warrant and a short address by the marshal, and a prayer by the chaplain. It was estimated that more than twenty thousand people witnessed the execution.

27. My son returned to Boston, in the Stage. Received a letter from Maj^{r}. Russell in which he writes that I am a member of the Mechanic charitable Association.[1]

28. Went to Church twice. Wm. Andrews dined with me as usual.

[1] During the last few years of the preceding century, the mechanics of Boston were greatly hampered by the evils growing out of the apprentice system. Owing to the rapid growth of the town, and the many important improvements which were being carried on, labor was scarce, and in the great competition resulting from these conditions, apprentices were induced to violate the terms of their indentures, by promises of better positions and increased pay. To protect their interests in this respect, the mechanics formed an association in 1795, of which Colonel Paul Revere was the first president, and Edward Tuckerman vice-president.

The society grew rapidly, soon after taking the name of the "Association of Mechanics of the Commonwealth;" and in 1806, was incorporated as "The Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics' Association," its present name.

April, 1819.

1. Went to Church twice. Fast day.

2. Both the girls, domesticks—are out again at a dance, this night.

3. Agreed with Parker, my Coachman to continue with me another year at 15 dols. per month.

4. The water rose, by reason of the heavy rain in the night, so as to run over the bridge on the Square. Wind to the South, and very high in the night. Great Freshets. The gate to let off the waste water at the Bridge under the hatter's shop, being neglected every year, gets frozen down, and thereby causes the water to rise over the bridge, and is the cause of great damage. Went to Church twice.

6. Moses Thomas, visit. Miss Lynde, Mr. Bangs & others—visit. Mr. Merrick also. S. J. C. Chief Justice Parker. Tibbets, the tailor, measured me for a Suit of Clothes—gave him Cloth for a Coat.

8. My new Housekeeper, Mrs. Catharine Whitney, of Boston, but resident some years past at Cambridgeport, returned to her home at Cambridgeport. She is a likely genteel woman—a widow of 37—of handsome manners, &c. but not calculated so well for the government of my family as I could wish. She has been in my family only 4 weeks, & parted with mutual Reluctance. Moses Thomas returned.

11. The Hon. Timy. Bigelow, speaker of the house of Representatives, Mr. P. Merrick and Mr. W. Andrews dined with me. Went to Church twice.

12. Took pills.—Mary Rebecca unwell for several days past.

20. Went to Boston with my Grand daughter Caroline, in the Coach.

21. Rode out to Jamaica Plains.

22. Rode out to Cambridgeport. Called on Mrs. Frazer alias Lawrence our former housekeeper. Called on our late Housekeeper Mrs. Whitney—& M. W. Cambridge port.

23. Called on Mrs. Munroe.

24. Went from Boston with Miss R. Armstrong to my brother's in Lancaster—Called in Concord on my late Coachman, Nahum Bragg—he lives on a good farm, and we dined with him, at his earnest request.

25. Returned to Worcester.

26. Sowed Peas in the Garden, first this Spring when first began digging the Garden.

28. Ministers Association Meeting at Dr. Bancroft's—Sermon by Dr. Sumner.

29. Sent Parker with the Carriage to Lancaster for Miss R. Armstrong—& the Carriage returned with Miss Armstrong in the afternoon.

30. Gentlemen met at the large School house, respecting a Sunday School[1]—Several Ladies visited Miss Armstrong. My grand daughter Mary Rebecca has been for sometime much out of health.

[1] This was probably the organization of the first Sunday School in Worcester, which was formed at the Old South Church, during the ministry of Rev. Charles A. Goodrich.

Turnips–Cut Asparagus. Mr. Jos. Johnson, keeper of my book store in Portland—came to see me with a view to purchase the whole of the stock. Finished digging Garden.

6. Sold all the Stock in the Bookstore to Joseph Johnson, on credit for 6000 dollars. He sat out on his return home.

7. Planted Winter & Summer Squash–Pole Beans–Cucumbers–Acorn Squash–Water Melons.

8. Drank Tea at Rev. Dr. Bancroft's. This is the first time I have taken tea, abroad, in Worcester, for several years. Joseph Manning died.[1]

9. Went to Church twice.

10. Attended the funeral of Joseph Manning who died on Saturday last.—My housekeeper, who, by the way, appears to be rather a singular sort of woman, took it in her head to be affronted, for what I know not, unless, as she hinted, I was not so social as she wished me to be.

12. Mr. Ewer & Mr. Bedlingham came from Boston to consult with me on the very bad state of my Son's affairs.

13. Mr. Ewer and Mr. Bedlingham returned to Boston. Attended a meeting of an Association of which I am a Member, to prosecute, &c. Robbers of Gardens, Orchards, Fields, &c. at Hathaway's inn.

14. Moses Thomas called & dined.

15. Dismissed and paid Mrs. Eunice Chadbourne, of Newbury port, my housekeeper—she has been in my family only four weeks. She was previously an entire Stranger to me—I found her to be a singular woman—no ways calculated for my family—parted with her, on friendly terms, but with no reluctance. My grand daughter Frances came in the Stage from Boston.

[1] In the records of the sub-council, 9 May, 1817, it is stated that "Whereas the President has very generously offered to contribute towards the erection of a building for the accommodation of the Society, a site suitable for this purpose, 150,000 Bricks, and 2,000.00 in Cash.

"Voted that the Committee of Ways and Means be requested to issue a subscription paper, and present it to those who may be disposed to aid in the attainment of the object.

26 June, 1817, "That part of the Committee of Ways and Means residing in Worcester made a report, that it is expedient that a Subscription be opened to procure a sum in order to enable the Society to build a suitable edifice for a Library and Cabinet also to elect a proper person to apply to the Members &c., in the United States for this purpose, and that this person to be furnished with 500 Dollars to enable him to proceed on his mission.

"Voted that the Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means forward to the other part of said Committee, residing in and near Boston, a copy of the report now made, for their consideration, and that further deliberation on this subject, by the Society, be deferred till a future meeting."

15 April, 1818, "The President communicated to the Society the present state of the library and cabinet, and suggested the propriety of taking some order relative to the erection of a building for the arrangement and preservation of the Society's collections.—Voted, that this subject be referred to an adjournment of the present meeting to be held at this place on the day afterward."

25 June, 1818. "Sundry concerns of the Society were discussed, and more particularly, the means and measures proper to be adopted to erect a suitable building for the use of the Society, on which subject it was—Voted, that a Committee be chosen to investigate the subject and to report it at an adjournment of this meeting—

Hon. Nathaniel Paine
Hon. Abijah Bigelow, and Rejoice Newton were chosen.

16 July, 1818. "The Committee appointed to consider & report on the subject of erecting a suitable building for the use of the Society made report which was recommitted to the same Committee."

20 July, 1818. "Voted—That the Committee who made report at the meeting holden on the 16th inst. be excused from any further consideration thereof, and that the same report and the subject on which the same was made be committed to a new Committee to consist of

Levi Lincoln, Jun. and Rejoice Newton.

No other reference is made to the building until 5 August, 1819, when it was "Voted, That, at the request of the President, a Committee be appointed to superintend the building, now erecting by him for the use of the Society.—Levi Lincoln, Jun., Nathaniel Macarty & Rejoice Newton, Esqs. chosen."

At the annual meeting of the society, 23 October, 1819, at Foster's Hotel, in Boston, the report of a committee on the general progress and state of the society, says:—

"Within the last year our venerable and enterprising President, in praise of whose munificence too much cannot be said, has erected at great expense a handsome, commodious and substantial building for the use and benefit of the Society; and it will probably be ready for the reception of the library and cabinet at some time during the next season. It is sufficiently large to answer all the purposes of the Society for many years, and is so constructed that whenever more room shall be wanted additions may be made without disfiguring but would rather increase the elegance of the edifice."

No deed of the land or building ever passed from Mr. Thomas to the society, however, but he made the following devise in his will;—

"I give to said Society, (provided I shall not before my death execute a deed thereof,) and their successors forever, that tract of land in Worcester whereon is now erected a building for the use of said Society, which land I purchased of Samuel Chandler's heirs, containing about one acre near the Second Parish, with the said building thereon, which building is to be forever sacredly appropriated as long as said Society shall exist, for the library, cabinet, &c., of said Society; and the house and building are accordingly devised upon this express condition. And in case said Society shall at any time cease to use said building for said purpose, then the whole of this estate is to revert to my grandchildren generally and their heirs."

21. Sent Parker home with the Horses. Left the Coachee in Boston to be repaired & varnished. Parker stopped by the way, & did not get home till next morning. Dined at Mr. Samuel Armstrong's with Mrs. Rebecca Armstrong and two young Clergymen.

22. Returned to Worcester in the Mail Stage. 6½ hours on the passage.

23. Went to Church twice.

25. Finished sewing in the Garden, and all the Alleys cleaned and fixed, &c.

27. Sent 200 dollars to Benja. Butman of Dixmont to pay Taxes, yesterday.

28. Built a new Hog pen engaged last Summer by Mrs. Thomas—it cost more than 60 dollars; a very needless expense. This was owing to my neglect in not giving directions to the Carpenters. Fifty dollars might have been saved.

29. Mr. Professor Shurtliff[1] of Dartmouth College called on me.[1] Parker went to Princeton on his own business—tarried all Night and all the next day.

15. Mr. William Sheldon arrived here. He came from Jamaica, by way of New Brunswick and Newyork.

White washed, papered and painted the Kitchen.

16. Bought another Cow of Jacobs for 35 dollars. Cow returned in the night, eleven miles to Sutton.

17. (Paid) Seal for Am. Antiqn. Society—cost 25.00.[1] Sent after the Cow which took most of the day. Painted Kitchen and little room floor. Whitewashed Garden fences. Mr. Sheldon arrived on Tuesday and went to Smithfield to see his daughter Mrs. Buffum, yesterday.

18. Bought black Silk Stockings, and Silk for small clothes—afterward found two pair of good Silk small clothes in my trunk.

[1] The original drawing of the seal of the society, which hangs in its main hall, bears upon its back the inscription, in Mr. Thomas's handwriting:—"Drawing of the seal of the American Antiquarian Society, designed by I. Thomas and drawn by John R. Penniman, Boston."

The following extracts from the records of the society, are all that is known of its history:

24 October, 1814. "Voted, that the device for the seal of the Society prepared by the Committee appointed for the purpose, be accepted, and that Messrs. Snelling and Samuel J. Prescott be a Committee to get the same engraved on steel for the use of the Society."

23 October, 1815. "The Committee on the subject of the seal reported progress.

1 January, 1817. "The Committee on the subject of the seal reported progress and had further time allowed them to comply with their direction from the Society."

15 April, 1818. "Mr. Snelling from the Committee on the subject of the Society's seal made report that it was impossible to have it executed, and at his suggestion it was voted that a copy of the device adopted by the Society be taken and transmitted to Mr. Burnside, the Corresponding Secretary at Worcester, to be sent by him to Mr. J. E. Bogert of New York, or some other member of the Society in that place, to be engraved in such manner as may be thought best, by the first artist in that city, on brass, silver or steel; the expense of which to be drawn from the Treasury of the Society."

In the records of the Sub-Council, is the entry, 20 December, 1819:—"A Seal for the society has been handsomely engraved; and presented this evening to the Society by the President."

20. Went to Church twice—Mr. Packard preached. Visited my Tomb in Worcester with my Grand daughter Frances.

21. Rode out with Frances. Mowed the Grass in the Front & back yards. Purchased a Brussells Carpet for the parlour—had it made in Boston—cost of the whole 130 dollars. Received it June 21st, 1819.

22. Rode out with Frances. Hired Mr. Reed to examine the Stock from Walpole, which came 2 years since.

24. Went to Grafton to celebrate the Festival of St. John. My nephew's daughter rode with me. About 250 brethren were present in the Procession—they were from 5 or 6 Lodges. I was requested by the Brethren to preside—and finally did so. Received the Thanks of the Brethren. About 150 Ladies joined the procession to and from the Church. We dined in a long booth, 2 rows of Tables—6 Clergymen were present. The Rev. Brother Clarke of Princeton delivered an Address in Public to a very crowded audience. The Ladies dined in Woods's hall; after dined the Ladies, the whole body formed in procession and visited the brethren at the booth, accompanied by Musick, took a seat with us, reciprocated a toast—after which and several Songs, they retired as did most of the brethren soon after. Moses Thomas & daughter visited us yesterday and tarried till this morning.

25. My Son died, aged 45 years, occasioned by the wounds he received by a fall the Evening before.

26. Went to Boston, in consequence of my Son's death, accompanied by his daughter Frances,— went by way of Northboro and took his two sons Isaiah and William with me to Boston.

7. First Cattle Shew in Worcester, and in the County.[1] Fine Exhibition of excellent Cattle. Very large number of people assembled—Some Gentlemen from Boston, &c.

[1] Although cattle fairs were held annually in Hardwick before the Revolution, and the Shrewsbury Agricultural Society, and the Brookfield Association of Husbandmen were formed before the Worcester society, this was the first cattle show to be held in the county. The committee of arrangements were Daniel Waldo, Theophilus Wheeler, Nathaniel P. Denny, Levi Lincoln, Jr. and Edward D. Bangs.

The early exhibitions were held on the common, and the annual address, until the completion of the Town Hall, in 1825, was delivered in the Old South Church Along Front street, and extending nearly to Salem square, were built rows of pens for the live stock, while the rest of the common was given up to refreshment booths, itinerant peddlers and side shows. The manufactured articles were exhibited in rooms provided outside.

The exercises of the day began with the ploughing match, always one of the chief features of the early cattle shows, which took place on "Baptist Hill," now Salem square. The Judges on Working Oxen, reported that "fifteen yoke of Oxen were entered conformably to the rules of the Trustees. The tests to which they were subjected, were calculated to exhibit their strength and docility, and the perfectly good management of their drivers. The cattle were uncommonly fine in size and appearance; and, great as were the expectations of the public from this part of the Exhibition, anticipation was more than satisfied. Indeed, it is difficult to conceive of a greater degree of perfection in animals of this description; and it was only by the liberality of the Society, through the exercise of a discretion reposed in the Trustees, in the allowance of an additional sum to the amount of premiums advertised, that the Judges were relieved from the most embarrassing perplexity, in deciding upon the nearly balanced claims of many of the competitors.

"The Oxen were tried by the single yoke, upon a cart weighing 11 cwt. 2 qrs. and 14 lbs. loaded with 44 cwt. of stone; making an aggregate of 55 cwt. 2 qrs. and 14 lbs. gross weight, which was drawn up a hill of the elevation of 4 deg. 50 min. and which also many of the cattle backed up the same elevation. They were next attached by the chain to a drag, loaded with 17 cwt. gross weight, placed on the travelled path, up the same hill—and were afterwards tried with a plough on a piece of unequal and partly rough-swarded ground. After all these trials, the whole were placed in a line, and were carefully examined and compared, and the premiums adjudged."

At eleven o'clock, the members of the society and the invited guests marched to the church, where, after a prayer by Dr. Bancroft, the address was delivered by Levi Lincoln, Jr. When the names of the judges and the arrangements for the day had been announced, the procession, escorted by the band of the first brigade, seventh division, "who at the request of Brig. Gen. Thomas Chamberlain, volunteered their services," made a circuit of the pens, and was dismissed. At half past one a new procession was formed for the dinner at the United States Hotel, where Governor Lincoln presided, assisted by Daniel Waldo, as vice-president. The official program of the day closed with the reading of the reports of the various committees, and the awards of the premiums, in the church, at half past five.

[1] Benjamin Butman, the son of Benjamin and Susanna Chamberlain Butman, of Worcester, entered the store of George Brinley, then a druggist in Boston, in 1808. Returning to Worcester in 1819, he formed a copartnership with John W. Stiles, of Templeton, under the name of Stiles and Butman, for the sale of West India goods, and built a store on the east side of Main street, opposite Elm. In 1828, Mr. Stiles relinquished his interest in the business to his son-in-law, Alfred Dwight Foster, who in a short time was succeeded by David Wilder, Jr., and the business was continued until 1836, as Benjamin Butman and Co., Mr. Butman retiring in that year to care for other business interests. From 1840 to 1850 he had a store in Brinley Block.

Shortly after returning to Worcester, Mr. Butman bought of Richard and William Bush, the tract of land on Main street, between Pleasant and Chandler, extending west as far as the present Newbury Street. He occupied the Gardiner Chandler house, which stood on this land, until 1829, and then sold it to Calvin Willard, having built for himself the house on Nobility Hill, so long occupied by Dr. Joseph Sargent. In 1852, he moved to his last residence on May Street.

Mr. Butman was the president of the Central Bank, from its incorporation in 1828 to 1836; and the first president of the Citizens Bank, from 1836 to 1838. In 1835 and 1837 he built, with Mr. Brinley, the Butman and Brinley blocks, at the corner of Main and Maple streets.

[1] John Brazer, the son of Samuel and Betsy Allen Brazer, of Worcester, Mass., after receiving the common school education was placed in a store in Boston. A mercantile life not being congenial to his tastes, however, he privately prepared for college, entered Harvard in 1810, and was graduated with the class of 1813. He studied theology, and at the same time served as tutor in Greek from 1815 to 1817, when he was made College Professor of the Latin Language and Literature. In 1820 he resigned this chair to become the minister of the North Church in Salem, where he remained until his death. In 1846 he went to South Carolina for his health and died there on the plantation of his classmate, Dr. Benjamin Hager on Cooper River.

Dr. Brazer was a member of the Board of Overseers of Harvard from 1829 to 1846; and in 1836 he received the degree of D.D. from that college. He was a frequent contributor to the North American Review and the Christian Examiner, and also published many sermons, addresses and essays.

He married, 19 April, 1821, Annie Warren, daughter of William and Sarah Warren Sever of Worcester.

[Born, Worcester, 21 September, 1789. Died, South Carolina, 26 February, 1846.]

[2] The original copper-plate of this diploma, which was engraved by Abner Reed, is supposed to have been lost in the Stationer's Hall fire in Boston.

At the top of the diploma, which was ten by sixteen inches in size, is an engraving, representing Columbus standing upon the fore deck of his caravel, which is being driven on by the gale, its sails partly reefed and partly torn. Before him stands a cask, and five men are shown with him on the deck. Above this engraving, and within the scroll surrounding it, is the legend:—"He (Columbus) wrote on parchment an account of his discoveries, wrapped it in a piece of oiled cloth & enclosed it in a

[1]Solomon Strong was chairman of this meeting, and Levi Lincoln, Jr., secretary. After an address by Rev. Aaron Bancroft, Oliver Fiske, Isaac Goodwin, Edward D. Bangs, Bezaleel Taft, Jr., and Samuel M. Burnside were appointed a committee to prepare resolutions expressive of the sense of the convention upon the subject of the toleration of slavery in the country west of the Mississippi. In the report of this committee, which was submitted on the following evening, was this resolution:—

"Resolved, that this meeting most earnestly requests their Representatives in Congress to use their unremitted exertions to prevent the sanction of that honorable body to any further extension of slavery, within the extending limits of the United States—more particularly, in giving a precedent in the case of the admission of Missouri—a precedent which, in future, may be the means of depopulating the vast wilds of Africa, and rendering our boasted Land of Liberty pre-eminent, only as a Mart for Human Flesh!"

[1] Benjamin Franklin Thomas, the eleventh and youngest child of Isaiah Thomas, Jr., and Mary Weld Thomas, was graduated from Brown in 1830, studied law with his brother-in-law, Pliny Merrick, and at Cambridge, and was admitted to the bar in 1834, before he had attained his majority. With no real love for his profession, necessity compelled him to devote all his time and energies to it, and in a few years he acquired a practice in the county equalled only by that of Governor Washburn. In 1842, he was commissioner under the United States bankrupt law; and Judge of Probate for Worcester County, from 1844 to 1848. In 1853, when barely forty years of age, he was appointed to the bench of the Supreme Judicial Court, to succeed Judge Fletcher; but resigned in 1859, on account of the inadequacy of the salary, and removed to Boston, where he held a position at the front rank of the bar. Upon the retirement of Chief Justice Bigelow, in 1868, Governor Bullock nominated him to fill that vacancy, but for political reasons the nomination was not confirmed.

Judge Thomas represented Worcester in the General Court, in 1842; was elector

[1] Thaddeus Mason Harris, was the eldest child of William and Rebekah Mason Harris, of Charlestown, Mass. Just before the battle of Bunker Hill, his father, who was the master of a public writing school, fearing for the safety of his family removed to Chorset, then a part of Sterling, Mass. The burning of Charlestown, by which he lost both his school and a new house, reduced him to poverty, and after teaching in some of the country towns for a short time, he entered the army as captain and paymaster. He died in 1778, and Thaddeus then ten years old lived with several farmers in the neighborhood, and finally prepared for college under Rev. Ebenezer Morse, of Boylston, a reputed Tory, helping to support himself by stripping ash or walnut clefts for brooms, and making axe handles, whip lashes, button moulds, and cat-gut for bass-viols and violins; and by the sale of wild honey earned enough to clothe himself for college. His mother, however, who had again married, opposed such aspiring views as a college education for her son, and persuaded him to become an apprentice to a saddle-tree maker; but an accident to his wrist prevented him from continuing this, and he became a clerk in the office of his grandfather, Thaddeus Mason, the Clerk of the Courts of Sessions and Common Pleas for Middlesex County, intending to become a merchant. At the same time he went to the school of Mr Kendall, in Cambridge, who was so determined that he should have a college education that he induced Rev. Drs. Stillman and Thacher, of Boston, to issue subscription papers in his behalf, and in this way sufficient funds were procured to defray his expenses at Harvard. In his freshman year he was invited to live, free of charge, in the family of Professor Williams, whose son was a classmate, and in the two following years he obtained his board by serving as a waiter in the Commons Hall. He was graduated in 1787, and his commencement part, a poem on "History," was considered so remarkable, that Drs. Thacher and Belknap asked that it might be published in the Columbian Magazine, "fully persuaded that it would tend to increase the reputation of our College, to the Southward." This request was, however, declined. On leaving college he was a teacher in the Centre District school in Worcester for a year, and then accepted the appointment of private secretary to Washington, but just at this time he was seized with the small-pox, and the position was taken by Tobias Lear. He completed his theological studies at Harvard, and was "approbated to preach" by the Cambridge Association in June, 1789, preaching his first sermon in the pulpit of Rev. Joseph Jackson, in Brookline, in the following month. From 1791 to 1793, he was librarian of Harvard. 23 October, 1793, he was ordained over the First Church in Dorchester, as the successor of Rev. Moses Everett, and retained this pastorate until his resignation, in 1836. In 1792, he collected, revised and published the "Constitutions of the Ancient and Honorable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons," which had a second edition in 1798. He also published a series of discourses in favor of Free Masonry and his warm support of that organization made him the subject of bitter attacks during the anti-masonic troubles which followed the year 1826. In 1802, after an attack of the yellow fever, he spent four months in Ohio, which resulted in his publishing, two years later, a "Journal of a Tour into the Territory Northwest of the Alleghany Mountains, with a Geographical, and Historical Account of Ohio." Among his other works were the life of Oglethorpe the materials for which he collected during a visit to Georgia in the winter of 1834; the "Minor Encyclopedia"; "the Natural History of the Bible"; and "Memorials of the First Church in Dorchester."

Dr. Harris received the degree of D.D. from Harvard, in 1813. He was a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a member of the Massachusetts Historical and American Antiquarian Societies, and a corresponding member of the Archæological Society of Athens.

He married, in 1795, Mary, daughter of Elijah and Dorothy Lynde Dix.

[1] Isaac Goodwin, the son of William Goodwin, of Plymouth, Mass., studied law with Joshua Thomas, in that town, and was admitted to the bar in 1808. After practising for less than a year in Boston, he settled in Sterling; and in 1826, removed to Worcester, where he opened an office in a small building on the south side of Lincoln square. In the same year he was elected secretary of the Worcester Mutual Fire Insurance Company; and two years later became the first secretary of the Worcester County Institution for Savings, of which he was one of the original corporators.

In 1824, Mr. Goodwin published "Goodwin's Town Officer," a treatise on the laws relating to town government; and in 1830, "The New England Sheriff," a similar work for the guidance of sherriffs and constables. In 1825, a history of Sterling appeared in "The Worcester Magazine." Three addresses by him were also published:—one at the dedication of Antiquarian Hall, in 1820; another before the Worcester Agricultural Society, in 1824; and an oration delivered at Lancaster, in 1826, in commemoration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the destruction of the town by the Indians.

Mr. Goodwin married Elizabeth Hammatt.

[Born, Plymouth, 28, June, 1826. Died, Worcester, 17 September, 1832.]

[2] At the meeting of the sub council, 4 April, 1820, it was Voted "that there be a public Dedication of the building intended for the use of the Society when the same shall be ready and the Library and Cabinet are placed therein.

The Massachusetts Spy 30 August 1820, contains the following notice:

American Antiquarian Society.

THE Building lately erected for the use of the Society, in Worcester, by the bounty of the President, ISAIAH THOMAS, Esq., LL.D. being now completed, will be dedicated on THURSDAY, the 24th inst (to-morrow.) The Exercises on the occasion will be Prayers, a Publick Address by Isaac Goodwin, Esq., and appropriate Musick.

Members of the Society, and others disposed to countenance the objects and to encourage the exertions of this National Institution, are requested to attend.

The Society will dine at Sikes's Coffee-House.

REJOICE NEWTON,
Recording Secretary.

Worcester, August 23, 1820.

The issue of 30 August, also publishes this report of the exercises:—

"DEDICATION.

On Thursday last the elegant and commodious building lately erected in this town for the accommodation of the American Antiquarian Society was dedicated to their use with suitable solemnities. The Society assembled at their new Hall at 10 o'clock, and at 11, moved in procession to the North Meeting-house. The services were opened by Prayer, from the Rev. Dr. BANCROFT, who also read select passages from the Sacred Volume. The Address, by ISAAC GOODWIN, Esq. was learned and ingenious, and was received with much satisfaction by a numerous audience.—Sacred Musick was performed by a choir of singers from the various religious societies in this town. —After the services, the Society returned to their Hall; and, from thence, repaired to Sikes's Coffee-House, where a most sumptuous entertainment was provided for the occasion. Mr. GOODWIN's Address will soon be submitted to the publick.

We rejoice in the situation and prospects of this infant but respectable Institution, which is not intended as a rival to any of the learned societies of our country, but to co-operate with them in the diffusion of science, and in the preservation of materials for the historian and biographer. The Society are indebted, for the spacious and durable edifice, with which they are now accommodated, to the munificence of their President, ISAIAH THOMAS, Esq. who was the founder, and has been the patron and bountiful benefactor of the Institution.

The Library and Cabinet are far more extensive and valuable than could have been anticipated, considering the short period during which collections have been making. The former already consists of about 7,000 volumes, besides several hundred volumes of newspapers, neatly bound and lettered, and a very considerable collection of manuscripts and pamphlets. Many of the books and manuscripts are very rare and ancient; and of some of them it is believed that no other copies exist in the United States. A great number of valuable German books were included in the late legacy of the Rev. Dr. Bentley.

We cannot forbear calling the publick attention to a late interesting publication of the Society, under the title of "Archaeologia Americana." it being the first volume of the "Transactions and Collections" of the Society. It contains much entertaining and instructive matter, and is embellished with Maps Engravings and Cuts, illustrating the objects of curiosity which it describes. The price is $3.00, and is certainly moderate for a volume of its size and character. It will well repay the perusal of any one who feels interested in the antiquities of this portion of the world."

inclement season, in the desolation of a wilderness, amidst savages and beasts of prey, the tread of Christians impressed these shores with the first footsteps of civilisation. The hazard in corporeal existence which they incurred, the struggle for self preservation which they maintained, their undaunted energy in danger, their unbending integrity in temptation, their pious resignation in suffering, their fear and worship of God, and their regard for and love of each other, are themes, which, on every occasion of remembrance, swell with enthusiastic admiration the hearts of their descendants. Forever cherished be these recollections! Forever honored be the names and characters of the pilgrims! On every recurring anniversary of their landing may this first scene of their trials and their sufferings, their conflicts and their endurance, be hallowed by the personal homage of those who are worthy to inherit the rich fruits of their triumph. May the Pilgrim Society eminently flourish and with its success may public gratitude be excited towards all those enlightened, munificent and patriotic men by whose merits and exertions the occasion has hitherto been had in honor, and who are now associated to make the record of that occasion permanent."

[1] The West Point cadets, under the command of Major William T. Worth, marched from West Point to Boston, by way of Albany, Lebanon, Springfield and Worcester, and returned through Providence. Upon their arrival in Worcester, at about six o'clock in the morning, they were met by a committee of the citizens, and conducted to their camp on Frost's Hill, where they were received by Major Levi Lincoln, assisted by Messrs. Newton, Davis and Allen. Between eleven and twelve o'clock the battalion marched to the hotel of Howe and White, where a public banquet was given in their honor.

"The officers, together with a number of other gentlemen and ladies, interchanged civilities and regaled themselves at the hospitable mansion of the Hon. LEVI LINCOLN during the evening; and in this pleasant and gratifying manner did the ceremonies of the day end, and our agreeable visitants took leave of the town about four o'clock next morning.

"The musick of the band attached to this corps was such as would do honour to any age or country. The performances were most masterly— 'a concord and harmony of sweet sounds' were poured forth, which, sometimes by its grandeur and sublimity, solemnized the mind—and at other times, by its touching pathos, stole upon the feelings of the enchanted listener and melted the soul.

"Amateurs affirmed that they had no adequate conception of the powers of the bugle, until they witnessed the surprising performances of the master musician of this band, who traversed the whole range of musical notes in tones so varied, so sweet, and so melodious, as to ravish the senses. This language, to those who had not the pleasure of hearing these musicians, may seem extravagant; but to those who had, it will not savour of unjust panegyrick.

"On the whole, these remarks cannot be better brought to a close than in the appropriate language of a toast given by one of the Committee of arrangements—'Worth makes the man'—WORTH forms the soldier."

9. A Mr. Ames, paper maker called on me. Wished to see me in Private—said my son owed him. Made some illiberal observations, and expressed some unjust suspicions respecting the property I bought of my son,—&c. &c. my feelings were much hurt.

10. Went to Church twice. Rev. Mr. Nash dined with me and Augusta and Caroline.

12. Bought a horse of Col. Sikes[1] for 95 dollars, to replace the off and excellent horse I have had for several years,

[1] In 1783, Reuben Sikes, Jr., who had just begun business for himself as a blacksmith in his native town of Somers, Conn., was persuaded by Levi Pease, to abandon his trade, and establish with him a line of stages between Boston and Hartford. When, in the summer of that year, Pease determined to embark on this venture, he tried to induce one, Ballard, the only man who had a public carriage in Boston at that time, to enter into partnership with him, but the latter declined to have anything to do with so visionary a scheme, adding, "the time may come when the public will support a stage from Hartford to Boston, but not in your day or mine." His friends attempted to dissuade him from so perilous an undertaking, and when they found their protests were of no avail, begged him to make the passage only when he had passengers, as he had several times made the passage alone. He replied that passengers would come when they found that the stage could be relied upon. His prediction proved to be correct. 30 October, 1783, the following notice appeared in the Massachusetts Spy:—

STAGE WAGGONS.

The subscribers having furnished themselves with convenient STAGE WAGGONS, propose to set off from Hartford on Monday the 20th of October inst. at 11 o'clock, and arrive at Levi Pease's, Somers, at night—From thence to Rice's tavern, Brookfield, Tuesday night—From thence to Marfin's, Northborough, Wednesday night—From thence to the sign of the Lamb in Boston, on Thursday evening. The Stage will leave Boston on Monday morning at 6 o'clock, and stop at the aforementioned places, and reach Hartford on Thursday at 12 o'clock. A Stage will set off for New Haven on Friday, and return on Saturday The Price will be four pence per mile for every passenger, including 14 lb. baggage, and the same Price for every 150 lb. The greatest attention will be paid to passengers, by the publick's humble servants.

REUBEN SIKES, Jun.

24. Went to Church twice. Augusta and Caroline dined.

26. Began to take Milk at Dr. Fiske's—as the family inform me.

They were so successful that in the following May they purchased new carriages; in November, by an arrangement with Talmage Hall and Jacob Brown of Hartford, the stage communication was extended to New Haven; in 1786, they established a line of stages from Portsmouth, N. H. to Savannah, Ga.; and two years later the line was completed between Boston and New York.

Mr. Sikes continued the business after the retirement of his partner, and became one of the largest stage proprietors in New England. In May, 1807, he came to Worcester and purchased the Exchange Hotel, which he kept until his death. [Born, Somers, Conn., 16 July, 1755. Died, Worcester, 19 August, 1824.]

28. Feast of Squantum,[2] at Long Pond.

[1] John Pierpont was graduated from Yale in 1804; then taught school and served as a private tutor for several years; and in 1809, began the study of law, and was admitted to the Essex county bar. After practising for a short time in Newburyport, he was in business in Boston and Baltimore, until, in 1816, he finally studied theology. He was settled over the Hollis street church, in Boston, from 1819 to 1845; from that time until 1849 was minister of a Unitarian church in Troy, N. Y., and from 1849 to 1856, had a parish in Medford, Mass. During the war of the rebellion, he served as a chaplain in a Massachusetts regiment, but soon obtained a position in the treasury department.*

[2] The Feast of Squantum, an annual festival long observed by the citizens of Boston and the surrounding towns, was originally held in honor of the Indian tribes which formerly dwelt in the regions about Braintree and Dorchester. "At Massachusetts,"

29. An aged couple, by the name of Hill, of Smithfield, R. I. on a journey of 200 miles to visit their children in Vermont, called about sun down to see Parker my Coachman who has a brother married to one of their daughters.—the man is 82, and the woman 76 years, and lame—they are Quakers—they tarried by my invitation, over night. Rode out. Workmen repairing Dr. Bancroft's meeting-House—shingling painting, &c.

says Hutchinson, "near the mouth of the Charles river, there used to be a general rendevous of Indians. The circle which now makes the harbors of Boston and Charlestown, round by Malden, Chelsea, Nantasket, Hingham, Weymouth, Braintree and Dorchester, was the capital of a great sachem, much reverenced by all the plantations of Indians around about.*The tradition is that this sachem had his seat upon a small hill, or rising upland, in the middle of a body of salt-marsh, near to a place called Squantum."

The character of the festival, which resembled the modern shore dinner, is shown by the following notices in the Columbian Centinel of 19 and 26 August 1812:—

"The Friends of Old Squantum—in Country and Town are notified, that the original celebration of this Ancient FEAST, will hold its anniversary on SATURDAY NEXT, the 22d August, on the old consecrated spot, under the superintendence of their respected Brother WALKER. All who can bring good appetites and friendly hearts, are invited to attend, and partake of the fatness of the sea and the sand. The wigwam will be pitched at 10 o'clock, and struck at sun-down—Clams, fish, &c at all hours—Chowder at two hours past meridian. By direction of the Superintendent,

COOLIDGE and PEIRCE, Scribes.

"SQUANTUM FESTIVAL.

This feast was celebrated on Monday last by between 5 and 600 citizens from country and town, in ample and ancient form. Every thing conspired to render the day harmonious and agreeable. Of the invited guests were Gov. STRONG, Lt. Gov. PHILLIPS, Mr. Secretary BRADFORD, Commodore BAINBRIDGE, Rev. Dr. MORSE, Hon. Messrs. RICE and FISKE, of the Council, Hon. Mr. BARTLETT, and many gentlemen from the Southern States. At 5 o'clock his Excellency and Honor retired, when an escort was no sooner suggested than formed, under the direction of Maj. QUINCY and Capt. PHELPS, who conducted the guests to town, followed by a long train of carriages and chaises. Milton bridge was handsomely decorated on the occasion. The good ship Washington was saluted and cheered; and the salute and cheers were returned."

During the War of 1812, the Democrats did not join in the celebrations, though it was held annually by the Federalists; but after the close of the war the two parties again united in the festivities. After a few years, however, the disorderly element crept in, and the feasts were abandoned.

[1] George Allen, the son of Joseph and Dorothy Kingsbury Allen, was fitted for college at Leicester Academy, and was graduated from Yale in 1813. He studied theology at Hartford, Conn., and with Dr. Andrew Yates at Union College, Schenectady, and in 1816, taught school in Albany. Licensed to preach in 1817, he was for a time a missionary in the "Holland Purchase," in western New York. In 1819 he preached at Waterloo, and then for two years at Aurora, where, after accepting a call to settle, he was rejected by the council on doctrinal grounds. •19 November, 1823, he was ordained as the colleague of Rev. Joseph Sumner, of Shrewsbury, whom he succeeded in 1825. He was dismissed at his own request, in 1840, on account of personal troubles with his parish; and in 1843, became the chaplain of the State Lunatic Hospital, in Worcester, holding this position until his eightieth birthday, in 1872.

Mr. Allen married in 1817, Eliza, daughter of Elisha and Elizabeth Pitkin, of Enfield, Conn.

[Born, Worcester, 1 February, 1792. Died, Worcester, 31 March, 1883.]

[2] George Bancroft had at this time just returned from his studies in Germany, and was a tutor in Greek at Harvard.

[3] The address was delivered by Nathaniel P. Denny, of Leicester, and Rev. Joseph Coffe, of Millbury, was the chaplain. The guests included James Lloyd, United States Senator from Massachusetts, Josiah Quincy, Jr., and Captains John Rogers, Isaac Chauncey and James Biddle of the navy.

On Wednesday evening, an Oratorio, "infinitely preferable to a ball" was given

[1] Mr. Thomas began the publication of his almanac the last year he was in Boston, under the title of "Thomas' New England Almanac, or the Massachusetts Calendar for the year of our Lord Christ 1775.*Massachusetts Bay, Boston. Printed and sold by Isaiah Thomas at the printing office, the south corner of Marshall's Lane near the mill bridge." The next issue was that for 1779, which appeared as "Thomas's Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Connecticut Almanac, for the Year of our Lord Christ 1779:.....By Philomathes.

Th' amazing things that we have done,
The glorious battles we have won,
Have aggrandiz'd our name;
Where'er we strove to bear the sway,
The affrighted foe still slunk away,
To our immortal fame.

Massachusetts Bay: Worcester, Printed and sold by ISAIAH THOMAS."

The almanac was continued by him after this, without interruption, until he relinquished its publication to his son in 1801.

A second edition of the almanac for 1799 was published, in which the title was changed to "Isaiah Thomas's Almanac", probably to distinguish it from the "Old Farmer's Almanac", published by Robert B. Thomas.

From 1816 to 1819 it was printed by and for William Manning; and that for 1820, by Manning and Trumbull for George A. Trumbull. In the following year the name of Thomas was dropped, as the almanac had passed into the hands of Mr. Trumbull. The issue for 1822 was the last published at this period.

[1] William A. Wheeler, one of the first iron founders in the state, began business in Hardwick in 1812. He afterwards removed to Brookfield, and in 1823 opened a blacksmith shop in Worcester, at the corner of Thomas and Union streets. In June, 1825, he formed a partnership with George T. Rice, Henry W. Miller and Alfred D. Foster, for the manufacture of castings, stoves, fireproof bookcases and doors; but in the following year the business passed into the hands of the Worcester and Brookfield Iron Foundry. He returned to Worcester in 1831 or 1832 and reorganized his business, which he continued until his death in 1873. Mr. Wheeler built for himself the house on the site of the old Lincoln mansion, on Lincoln street, which was afterwards the residence of Philip L. Moen.

He married, 13 January, 1825, Almira W., daughter of Moses and Anna Allen, of Hardwick.

[1] The dedication of the "Thomas Royal Arch Chapter", and the installation of its officers, was performed by the "Most Excellent Grand Chapter of Massachusetts, Jona. Gage, Esq. Grand High Priest." The Grand Chapter was conducted by a committee of Thomas Chapter and a band of music, to the Masonic Hall, and after the preparatory duties, a general procession of more than two hundred and fifty masons was formed. They were joined by about one hundred and fifty ladies, whom they escorted to the meeting house, where a large stage was erected in front of the pulpit for the Grand Chapter and the officers of the lodge. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Companion, James Thompson, the chaplain of the day, and an address was delivered by the Rev. Companion, Alpheus Harding, after which the officers were installed by their corresponding Grand Officers, with an appropriate charge to each.

After the ceremonies at the church the ladies were again conducted to their apartments where a committee from Thomas Lodge had prepared a dinner for them. When the Grand Chapter had unrobed, a new procession was formed and marched to a dinner which was served under a large bower. The evening closed with a ball and a display of fireworks.

"Perhaps no one circumstance of the day served to enhance the pleasure of the fraternity more, than the presence of that veteran in Masonry, Isaiah Thomas, Esq. who has, with so much honour to himself, and utility to the craft—formerly for many years, presided as Grand High Priest of the Grand Chapter, and Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts—and in honour of whose meritorious services, the new Chapter at Princeton was styled 'Thomas Chapter.' After Brother Thomas had retired, his health was drank with enthusiasm, and three times three."

The officers of Thomas Chapter were:—Rev. Samuel Clark, H. P.; Timothy Whiting, K.; Moses Thomas, S.; John Whiting, Treasurer; Alexander Dustin, Secretary; Nahum Rice, R. A. C.; John G. Davis, C. H.; Charles Russell, P. S.; Clark Mirick, William Howe and Merrill Davis, M. V.; Rev. Elisha Andrews, Chaplain; and Isaac Bassett, Jr. and Joel Pratt, Stewards.

[1] Joseph Green Cogswell was graduated from Harvard in 1806, and soon afterward went to India as supercargo of a merchant vessel. On his return, he studied law with Fisher Ames, and practised for a time in Belfast, Me. He was a tutor at Harvard, from 1813 to 1815 and, during the four subsequent years was in Europe with George Ticknor, two of which were spent in study at the University of Gottingen. In 1820 he was appointed professor of geology and mineralogy at Harvard, but resigned in 1823 to establish, with George Bancroft, the Round Hill School at Northampton. After Mr. Bancroft's retirement, in 1830, he continued the school for six years, and then had charge of a similar school in Raleigh, N. C. He afterward edited the New York Review, until its suspension in 1842. As the result of an intimate friendship formed at this time with John Jacob Astor he was appointed, with Washington Irving and Fits-Greene Halleck, a trustee of the fund for the establishment of the Astor Library and, in 1848, according to Mr. Astor's expressed wish, become its superintendent. After his retirement from this position, he removed to Cambridge.

Mr. Cogswell received the degree of Ph.D. from Gottingen in 1819, and that of LL. D. from Trinity College, Hartford, in 1842, and from Harvard, in 1863.

Died, Cambridge, Mass., 26 November, 1871.]

[1] Loammi Ives Hoadley was born in Northford, a parish of Branford, Conn., 25 October, 1790, was graduated from Yale in 1817, and from the Andover Theological Seminary in 1820. He remained at the latter place another year as a resident licentiate, and came to Worcester to supply the pulpit of the Calvinist Church in October, 1822. In 1829 ill health compelled him to ask for his dismissal, which was granted in May of that year. In the winter of 1829 he preached in Andover; and from 1830 to 1832 was minister of the church in Bradford, but was again compelled to resign, and removed to Charlestown. He was afterward the editor of The Spirit of the Pilgrims, and also assisted Rev. William Jenks in preparing his Comprehensive Commentary.

Mr. Hoadley married in 1824, Lydia, daughter of Eli Smith, of Northford.

He died in Northford, in 1881, at the age of ninety-one.

[2] The church was consecrated on the same day that Rev. Loammi Ives Hoadley, its first minister, was ordained. The introductory services of the consecration were performed by Rev. Benjamin B. Wisner, of Boston; the sermon was by Rev. Samuel Austin, then of Newport, R. I., and the consecrating prayer was offered by Rev. Samuel Green, of Boston.

At Mr. Hoadley's ordination, the introductory prayer was by Rev. Joel Hawes, of Hartford, Conn.; the sermon by Rev. Lyman Beecher, of Litchfield, Conn.; the ordaining prayer by Rev. Edmund Mills, of Sutton, moderator of the council; the charge by Rev. Elisha Fiske, of Wrentham; the right hand of fellowship presented by Rev. Baxter Dickenson, of Longmeadow; the address to the people by Rev. William B. Sprague, of West Springfield; and the concluding prayer by Rev. Benjamin Wood, of Upton.

[1] This was the consecration of Christ Church, Rochdale, Leicester, the first Episcopal church in Worcester county. The first service was conducted by Rev. Benjamin C. Cutler, of Quincy, at Hezekiah Stone's tavern in Leicester, 6 July, 1823. 16 August of that year, the land for the church was deeded by Stone to James Anderton, Samuel Slater of Oxford and Francis Wilby of Boston, as trustees; and 2 October the corner stone was laid with masonic honors.

The church was consecrated by Bishop Griswold "with great propriety"; the sentence of consecration was read by Rev. James Morse of Newburyport; and the service for the day by Rev. Samuel F. Jarvis, rector of St. Paul's Church, Boston. Rev. Joseph Muenscher, who had been in charge of the parish, was the first rector.

[1] Abraham Lincoln, the son of Enoch and Rachel Fearing Lincoln, of Hingham, Mass., came to Worcester about the year 1783, and studied medicine with Dr. Benjamin Greene, then a practising physician in the town. He began business as a druggist in the little wooden building at Lincoln square, in front of the present Antiquarian Hall, which was the first druggist shop in Worcester county, opened by Dr. William Paine in 1773. He lived across the street, in the house of his father-in-law, Timothy Bigelow.

Dr. Lincoln was always active in town affairs: was a selectman from 1809 to 1824; representative to the General Court from 1809 to 1823; and at the time of his death, a member of Governor Eustis' council.

He married, 7 January, 1787, Nancy, daughter of Timothy and Anna Andrews Bigelow.

1. Continue unwell. Did not go to Church. Frances, William, Edward & Benj[a]. dined with us.

2. Still troubled with a Cold, or Influenza, which began 9 or 10 days since—bad Cough which troubles me through the day, but does not disturb after going to bed, till the morning following. D[r]. Green continues his visits.

This day the Corner stone of the Hall, or Town house, as it is called was laid in Masonick form, &c. A Com[ee]. waited on me on this occasion. I rode to the spot—but too unwell to get from the Carriage, and stand during the Ceremonies.[1]

[1] The corner stone was laid by the brethren of Morning Star Lodge, assisted by craftsmen from several lodges in the vicinity. At two o'clock a procession of the Fraternity, under Colonel Samuel Ward, as marshal, marched to Stockwell's hall, (the Central Hotel) where they were joined by the citizens, and then to the foundation of the Town House. After religious exercises by Rev. Brother Jonathan Going, the stone was laid by Brother Lewis Bigelow, the master builder, and Colonel Peter Kendall, the principal architect. The address was delivered by Samuel M. Burnside. The exercises were closed with music and the benediction by Brother Going.

5. Went to Church twice. A grandson of the late Govr. Sullivan preached.

[1] On the preceding evening a deputation of the Committee of Arrangements met General Lafayette at the mansion of Sampson V. S. Wilder, in Bolton, and accompanied him on the following morning, through Lancaster, Sterling and West Boylston to the northern limits of the town, where the committee, headed by Levi Lincoln, awaited him. Here a procession was formed, under the command of Brigadier General Nathan Heard, Jr., in the following order:—

Two companies of cavalry.
Two marshals.
Committee of Arrangements in four carriages.
Two marshals.
Gen. Lafayette and Judge
Marshals. Lincoln in a barouche Marshals.
drawn by four gray horses.
Gen. Lafayette's family and suite in two carriages.
Two marshals.
Cavalcade of officers of militia in full dress.
Cavalcade of citizens.

Near Clark's tavern, (on Burncoat street) a regiment of light troops under Lieutenant Colonel Ward, joined the escort.

"On the arrival of the cavalcade at the hill on the old Boston road, near the entrance into the village, a national salute was fired by the Company of Artillery, posted on the hill by the turnpike. At this moment the bells of the different churches rung a merry peal, a signal to the multitudes anxiously awaiting his arrival, that La Fayette was near. As the procession entered the village, the scene was grand and affecting. Court hill was thronged with ladies; and the middle avenue, through which the procession moved, was lined on each side with the Youth of the Schools, more than five hundred in number, attended by their Teachers. In the middle of the avenue an Arch (far more beautiful, it is said, than any that was seen in Boston or its vicinity.) had been erected, covered with evergreens arranged with great elegance and effect, and surmounted by flags. As Lafayette passed under the Arch, he came into full view of the thousands who filled the square opposite the Court House and the streets diverging from it, and whose joy now burst forth in acclamations loud and long. At the same time a salute of twenty-four guns was fired.

"The scene was one which we have no ability to describe. The long trains of military, consisting of some of the finest troops in this Division—the cheering of the enthusiastic crowd, mingled with the roar of cannon, the martial music, and the ringing of bells—the waving of handkerchiefs, and the bright eyes which sparkled from every window—the appearance of him whose arrival was thus welcomed, with his head uncovered, bowing to the people, and giving his hand to those who pressed round his carriage—we leave all this to the imagination of the reader, and to the recollection of those who had the happiness to witness it.

"Near the Worcester Bank, the procession passed under several Flags extended across the street, from which was suspended the following:—

"HITHERTO I HAVE ONLY CHERISHED YOUR CAUSE. NOW I GO TO SERVE IT."

BRANDYWINE. VALLEY-FORGE.
JAMESTOWN. YORKTOWN.

The inscription did not escape his notice—and on reading it as he passed he appeared much affected at the allusions of the motto, and exclaimed, 'Ah I have not seen this before.'—Soon after passing this the General, amid cheers and welcomes, alighted at the spacious house of Judge Lincoln, which had been thrown open for such ladies as chose to avail themselves of this hospitality to see the Hero. The gate and portico were decorated with evergreen and flags, and the windows, even to the upper story, were crowded with ladies greeting his approach with smiles and tears, while their handkerchiefs waved in token of welcome."

Near the entrance to the house, Lafayette was introduced to the committee, and Judge Lincoln welcomed him in the name of the citizens, to which Lafayette made a short reply. A breakfast was then served, and at two o'clock, Lafayette, standing near the gate, reviewed the troops, after which he began his journey to New York.

[1] William Allen Crocker, the son of William Augustus and Sally Ingell Crocker of Taunton, Mass., was graduated from Brown in 1822. With his brothers, Samuel L. and George A. Crocker he commenced the manufacture of copper, in Taunton, and in 1831, they, with others, organized "The Taunton Copper Manufacturing Company," of which he was president for many years.

He was chiefly instrumental in originating the Taunton Branch Railroad, in 1835 and 1836, and the Taunton Locomotive Manufacturing Company; and projected the New Bedford Railroad, in 1839.

He retired from business in 1857, and in 1863 removed to New York.

He married, 10 November, 1824, Frances Church, daughter of Isaiah Thomas, Jr. and Mary Weld Thomas.

[Born, Taunton, 14 March ,1801. Died, New York, 13 May, 1871.]

[1] The celebration of the day began with a national salute and the ringing of bells in the morning. A public dinner, irrespective of party, was held at Stockwell's tavern, at which Rejoice Newton presided, assisted by Otis Corbett and Captain Lewis Bigelow.

Among the toasts given were the following:—

John Quincy Adams—His champion is the people, his herald their voice. Virtue and talent are his crown and diadem.

General Jackson—A most fortunate commander, whose most signal defeat has increased his reputation.

The unsuccessful Candidates for the Presidency——May their dignified demeanor cool the fervor of their fiery partizans, and reduce the boiling spirits to a state of moderate temperature.

The moral energy of our Political System—We are proving to the world, that the strongest, as well as the best government, depends upon the will of a free and enlightened nation.

Clay's and Kremer's game at Cards—Rather too much cutting and shuffling: very few honors, and some quite odd tricks.

The Worcester and Boston Canal—The grand artery which will more intimately unite the interests and feelings of the heart and the head of the Commonwealth.

American Parties and American States—Let the former be united by good principles and good feelings; the latter, by good Rail-Ways and Canals.

Hon. Levi Lincoln—The pride of the Heart, he will be an ornament at the Head of Massachusetts.

whole of which was more than a mile in length—was kindly supported by two past Grand Masters. Assisted in laying the Corner Foundation Stone of the Monument to be erected on Bunker hill. Was present near the Orator, on the Stage in the covered part of the amphitheatre, and heard the oration —Dined with the association. Above 5000 dined together, in a temporary building for the occasion. All the windows of the houses in Boston and Charlestown in the Streets where the procession passed were filled with females, as were fences, tops of houses &c. with men, women & children, and both sides of all the Streets thickly filled with Spectators of all descriptions.[1]

[1] The first steps toward the erection of the monument were taken in 1823, by Daniel Webster, Judge Tudor, Theodore Lyman, Jr., Thomas H. Perkins, General Dearborn and others; and 7 June the Bunker Hill Monument Association was incorporated.

General Lafayette had expressed his wish to be present at the laying of the corner-stone, and he was the chief guest of the association at the ceremony.

The military escort of the procession, consisting of sixteen companies of light infantry and a corps of cavalry, under the command of Brigadier-General Theodore Lyman, Jr., was followed by the survivors of the battle, about forty in number, the masonic bodies, the officers of the association, General Lafayette and his suite, revolutionary officers and soldiers, the state government, representatives of the national government and the diplomatic corps, various societies and invited guests. More than five thousand men were in the procession, of whom nearly two thousand were masons.

Upon its arrival at the hill, the procession was grouped about the stone, which was laid in masonic form by the Grand Master of Massachusetts, John Abbot, assisted by Mr. Webster, the president of the association, and General Lafayette.

At the conclusion of this ceremony the spectators were seated in a large amphitheatre on the hill, in front of which a platform was erected for the society and invited guests. On either side of this platform were low galleries for the ladies. After a prayer by Rev. Mr. Thatcher, the chaplain of Prescott's regiment and the first chaplain of the Revolutionary army, Mr. Webster delivered the address. Rev. James Walker, of Charlestown, offered the concluding prayer.

The subscribers to the dinner and the invited guests were then escorted to the highest part of the hill, where a large tent, four hundred feet long and one hundred wide had been erected. Beneath this twelve tables were placed, running the whole length of the tent, with places for three thousand persons; and in the centre was a raised platform for General Lafayette, the distinguished guests, revolutionary officers and survivors of the battle.

[1] Clarendon Harris the son of Thaddeus Mason and Mary Dix Harris, came to Worcester in 1822, and was for a time employed in the Registry of Deeds. 6 August, 1823, he purchased the old Thomas book store, on Court Hill, of George A. Trumbull, which he removed, in 1829, to a new brick building, erected by Dr. John Green, on the west side of Main street, nearly opposite the head of Central.

His first business venture was the publication, in October, 1823, of a volume of poems by George Bancroft; but it was soon called in by the author. In 1829 appeared "The Worcester Village Directory, containing the names of the Inhabitants, their dwelling houses and places of business—arranged according to the streets and squares, to accompany a Map of the Village of Worcester. Worcester: Published by Clarendon Harris. From the Ægis Press, 1829." This was the first Worcester directory to be published separately.

Mr. Harris was elected the first secretary of the State Mutual Life Assurance Company in 1844, and four years later retired from business that he might devote more time to the duties of this office. He became the treasurer of the Worcester Five Cents Saving Bank upon its organization in 1854, serving until 1872; and was its president from 1876 to 1884.

Mr. Harris married, 30 December, 1823, Charlotte Mary Thayer, of Dorchester [Born, Dorchester, Mass., 8 September, 1800. Died, Worcester, 12 January, 1884.]

8. Value of my bound and Sheet Stock, as taken by Mr. Harris during the last and the present month, according to former prices, about 7 years since, amounts to $28,185. several articles not included—which at this time deducting two thirds would amount to $9395—There are 5800 Bibles 800 with Apocrypha, in the Sheet Stock, for which I gave $1.50 for each copy, but which are now charged only $1.50 and deducting two thirds from this price allows but 41⅔ cents for each copy, which is not the amount of the paper.

June, 1826.

1. Returned from Lancaster and Sterling.

2. Some highway work done on the hill—Court hill.

3. Dr. Porter of Plainfield, called. He came on a visit of several days—Have but little acquaintance with him—he appears to be a very intelligent, likely man. I provided a place for [him] to board, at my own expense.

4. Did not go to Church. Edward and Benj^{a}. at Dinner.

5. Fires in sitting rooms, generally.

6. do. do. in the morning. Settled with Samuel Reed, Esq. Executor of the Will of the late Mrs. Knox and received my Legacy. Dr. Porter ended his visit, and returned on his way home.

8. Sent Parker with Benjamin to Leicester Academy, vacation being ended.

9. Parker—absent—half a day on a party of pleasure.

11. Went to Church twice. Mr. Merrick & Edward at Dinner.

12. Mr. Merrick went to Boston. Mr. Mills called on me requesting a donation for Burlington College. Mercy Goldthwait came to live in the family.

13. A woman, who has travelled, as she says, from Alabama to Boston in the Stages, called to see me—has published a book, intitled "Sketches of the History, Life and Manners of the United States, by a Traveller," of which she said she was the authoress. She carries with her her Books for sale. She was a loud talker—not delicate —and appeared to me and others somewhat deranged. Her name is Royall.

14. M^{r}. Merrick returned from Boston—his wife returned with him—she has been absent nearly 4 weeks.—Mary Andrews came with them.

5. Parker went with Benj[a]. to Leicester. Mr. Merrick returned from Boston.

6. Isaiah from Boston.

7. Isaiah & Edward at Breakfast, dinner &c.

8. This day the Labourers, first broke Ground, in Thomas Street, in this town, for making the Canal to Providence.—In Rhode Island, they have been employed on the Canal several months.[1]

Church, where the exercises consisted of prayer by Rev. Aaron Bancroft; the reading of the Declaration of Independence by William Lincoln; and an oration by Charles Allen.

Isaiah Thomas presided at the dinner, in the Town Hall, assisted by Samuel M. Burnside, Thomas Chamberlain and Otis Corbett as vice-presidents. John W. Lincoln acted as toastmaster. "The toasts were drank under the discharge of cannon; and each was followed by the richest music, from a part of the performers in the Meeting House."

[1] The project of connecting Worcester with Providence by means of a canal was first seriously thought of in 1796. The leading spirit of the enterprise was John Brown of Providence, who was so confident of its success, that he is said to have subscribed $40,000.00 to the stock; but at about the same time a canal was proposed from Boston to the Connecticut river, and the route was surveyed by General Henry Knox. Jealousy between the two companies arose which eventually defeated the plans of both. The matter was not revived until the spring of 1822, when meetings were held both in Worcester and Providence, to further the object.

At a meeting held in Worcester, 10 May, Levi Lincoln, William E. Green, John Milton Earle, John Davis, John Waldo Lincoln, Edward D. Bangs of Worcester, and John Lees of West Boylston, were appointed a committee to correspond with men in Providence and other places upon the subject. This committee submitted their report at an adjourned meeting on 24 May.

Circulars were addressed to the different towns in the county, to ascertain the quantity of heavy articles annually transported to Boston. As an example, in New Braintree, then a town of less than eight hundred inhabitants, the products thus transported were found to be;—100 tons of cheese, 75 tons of pork, 10 tons of butter, and 15 tons of cider, poultry, &c.

Upon the presentation of this report, 24 May, it was

"Resolved, That a Committee be appointed to coöperate with any Committee in Providence or elsewhere; with discretionary authority to apply to the Legislature of this State for an Act of Incorporation: and that they be requested to raise by Subscription or otherwise, upon such terms and in such manner as to them shall seem advisable, such sums of money as may be necessary to defray the expenses of surveys, and other contingent expenses; and to collect and publish, in such manner as they may think proper, such further information as they may be able to obtain relative to the subject of the Canal."

The members of this new committee were Levi Lincoln, John Davis, John Milton Earle, William E. Green, John W. Lincoln and Edward D. Bangs of Worcester; John Lees of West Boylston; Nathaniel P. Denny, of Leicester; Bezaleel Taft, Jr., of Uxbridge; Lemuel Davis of Holden; John Warren of Grafton; Jonas Sibley of Sutton; Aaron Tufts of Dudley; Asa Waters of Millbury; Paul Whitin of Northbridge; Richard Olney of Oxford; and Henry Penniman of New Braintree.

The survey, under the direction of Holmes Hutchinson, and supervised by Benjamin Wright, the chief engineer of the middle section of the Erie Canal, was completed in September, 1822. The charter of the Blackstone Canal Company was granted by the Legislature of Massachusetts in March, 1823, and by the Assembly of Rhode Island at its session in the following June. There were three commissioners for each state:—Edward Carrington, Moses B. Ives and Stephen Smith for Rhode Island; and John Davis, John W. Lincoln and Stephen Holbrook for Massachusetts.

Excavations were begun in Rhode Island, in 1824; and at its northern terminal, at Thomas Street, in Worcester, in 1826.

The Microcosm, (Providence) of 4 July, 1828, contains the following notice:—

"First Trip on the Blackstone.—On Tuesday last (1 July) the proprietors of the neat Canal Passage Boat, Lady Carrington, invited a number of gentlemen to join them in an excursion up the Blackstone Canal, the first passage of any boat from tide water, into the interior of this state, performed by means of internal lock navigation. The occasion consequently, was one of no small interest. Among the passengers were his Excellency the Governor, two of the R. I. Canal Commissioners, and about 50 citizens, including the private company who have had the honor of launching the first passage Boat on the Blackstone Canal.

"At about 10 o'clock in the morning the Lady Carrington started from the first lock above tide water at Mill Bridge, a salute of artillery announcing her departure seconded by the cheers of those on board, and the shouts of hundreds of spectators who crowded the Banks and surrounding eminences to witness this novel spectacle, to which were added the enlivening notes of a band of music, by whom we were entertained throughout the passage. The boat is of the largest size that can be admitted into the locks, being about seventy feet long, and nine and a half wide, and as high as will admit of a safe passage under the bridges crossing the Canal. She is covered on top, having below a cabin nearly the whole extent of the boat, conveniently and neatly arranged. Her draft, when filled with passengers, does not exceed 8 or 9 inches, and being the first model of a boat for this kind of navigation, built in this quarter she does great credit to those who constructed her. The strength with which she is put together, notwithstanding her lightness, was fully tested by the many hard thumps she received in passing the locks, consequent on the want of experience on the part of our numerous and indefatigable commanders, who, however, promise to become as expert in this navigation as they were hospitable in the entertainment furnished for their guests.

"The boat was drawn up the canal by a tow line attached to two horses that travelled with rapidity on the straight levels, of which there are some very beautiful ones before you come to the Blackstone river. She might be conveyed with ease at the rate of four or five miles an hour. The delays incident to a first experiment, and the lowness of the water, the levels being but partly filled, made the time of the passage up to Scott's Pond, a distance of five miles, about two hours. The trip was extended without obstruction up to the Albion Factory, ten miles from tide water, and just above the junction of the Canal with the Blackstone River on whose smooth surface the route lies there for a short distance."

5 July the Massachusetts and Rhode Island companies were united, and the new organization held its first meeting at Rawson's hotel, in Uxbridge. Edward Carrington was elected president; Thomas Burgess, treasurer; George Curtis, secretary; and Austin Denny, clerk.

The first boat to pass through the whole length of the canal reached Worcester 7 October, 1828. See entry and note 7 October, 1828.

[1] This incident was the result of a controversy between the Worcester Bank and the Suffolk Bank of Boston, in regard to the redemption of the former's bills. As it was for the interest of the State banks to keep their bills in active circulation, they were only allowed to pay out their own, thereby causing great inconvenience to the banks in the larger places, by rendering it necessary for all "foreign bills" to be redeemed at the bank which issued them. The Suffolk Bank had previously offered to receive at par the bills of any bank which would keep an adequate deposit with it; and 8 December 1825, this offer was made to the Worcester Bank; but as it carried with it the condition that the whole deposit should be kept there, and as the New England Bank was the latter's correspondent in Boston, the offer was declined. 8 April the cashier of the Suffolk Bank again wrote:—"If you will give instructions to the New England Bank, or any other Bank in Boston, to redeem your bills whenever we present them, we shall esteem it a favour; otherwise we shall be compelled to adopt the old system of requiring specie for them." This proposition was also refused, the directors declining to act under compulsion. 25 April, Mr. Waldo, acting for the directors, suggested "that whenever the Suffolk Bank should have collected such an amount of Worcester Bills as should be agreed upon, the Cashier of the Suffolk Bank should give the Cashier of the Worcester Bank notice in writing, when a check on the New England Bank should be sent by the return mail. The sum thus received by the Suffolk Bank to be then credited to the Worcester Bank; the bills to be put under a cover, sealed up, marked, and returned at the expense and risk of the Suffolk Bank, but not debited until they had actually been received at the Worcester Bank; and in no case were the bills to be detained more than ——— days after payment." This plan was not accepted. The Suffolk Bank continued to demand and receive specie, until, on the morning of 26 July a messenger of the Suffolk Bank presented two packages of bills, amounting to $48,000, and demanded their redemption. As this sum represented more than half the circulation of the Worcester Bank, it was impossible to redeem them in specie at so short a notice, and the messenger was offered a draft upon the New England Bank, where there was a deposit of $39,000.00 to its credit. He declined to accept the draft unless the directors would engage in future to redeem their bills and make their deposits at the Suffolk Bank. This proposition was rejected, and the messenger was paid $28,000.00 in specie, and informed that the remainder would be paid upon the opening of the Suffolk Bank in the morning. The cashier, Mr. Jennison, was immediately sent to Boston to pay the remainder, but the bank refused to receive it, and on the following day attached the real estate of the corporation "in security for the payment of Bank Bills for which the specie was offered before the process issued."

[1] On the preceding day the "Lady Carrington" passed the locks near the Armory village, in Millbury, where it was welcomed by a salute of twenty-four guns. Upon its arrival at the upper basin, in Thomas street, it was enthusiastically received by the citizens, the cannon were fired and the church bells rung. On board were Stephen Smith and Moses B. Ives, of Providence, and John Waldo Lincoln and John Davis, of Worcester, of the board of canal commissioners, and many guests, both from Rhode Island and Massachusetts. Pliny Merrick, chairman of the selectmen, made an address from the deck, after which Governor Lincoln entertained the guests at luncheon.

Great expectations were raised of the benefits which would accrue to Worcester from the increase of trade following the completion of the canal. The Worcester papers established a column of marine intelligence, and the following

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 11.

Arrived, Canal Boats, John Brown, Poor; Providence, Dobson: Mendon, Welles, and Worcester, Green, from Worcester, with domestic goods, wood, &c

Boat Massachusetts, Bamford, from Northbridge, with wood, &c.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 12.

Arrived—Boats, John Capron, Capron, from Uxbridge; and Rhode Island, Wilkinson, from Worcester.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 13.

Left the Canal basin, boats Massachusetts, for Worcester, with barley and molasses; John Brown for Worcester, with machinery and flour; Worcester, for Slatersville, with cotton, flour and oil; Providence, for Worcester, with lumber.

The canal was not a financial success, however. After the introduction of the railroads, its usefulness ceased, and its business gradually decreased. In April, 1846, the company sold the portion in Massachusetts to the Providence and Worcester Railroad. The last toll was collected 9 November, 1848; and 25 April, 1849 the entire property of the company was offered for sale at auctiion.

keeper to succeed William Lincoln. He was the editor of the National Ægis from July, 1829, until the following May, when he removed to Barre, at the same time resigning as librarian of the Antiquarian Society.

In the fall of the same year he entered into partnership with Jonas L. Sibley, of Sutton, and remained in that place until 1822, when he returned to Worcester, and became the permanent librarian of the Antiquarian society, retaining this position until his death.

In the summer of 1835, Mr. Baldwin started on a journey to the western states, for the benefit of his health, and at the same time with the purpose of examining the ancient mounds in Ohio in the interests of the Society. While on his way from Wheeling to Zanesville, in August, he was suddenly killed by the overturning of the stage on which he was travelling.
